DAILY OUTLOOK

U.S. labor market releases in the previous trading session delivered mixed signals to financial markets. Weekly Initial Jobless Claims rose to 231K (Cons: 212K; Prev: 209K), marking the largest increase in nearly two months. At the same time, JOLTS Job Openings fell to a five-year low of 6.54 mn in Dec '25 (Cons: 7.20 mn; Prev: 6.93 mn). On one hand, these data points strengthened expectations of a cooling labor market, reduced inflationary risks, and increased the likelihood of monetary support through Fed rate cuts to help stabilize employment conditions. As a result, the US10Y yield declined sharply by -9.6 bps on the day. On the other hand, the softer labor indicators also reflected weakening real-sector activity, raising concerns about corporate earnings prospects. This weighed on equities, with the DJIA and S&P 500 each falling -1.2%, while the Nasdaq declined -1.6%. Risk-off sentiment extended to digital assets, as Bitcoin dropped -12.4% to USD63,539.4—its lowest level since mid-Oct '24—shedding nearly -50% from the record peak near USD126,000 reached in Oct '25. The decline was driven by thinning liquidity and a broad sell-off in global technology stocks, which renewed pressure on risk assets. Precious metals also corrected, with spot gold falling -2.7% to USD4,830.83 per ounce, while spot silver tumbled -15.6% to USD74.42 per ounce. Looking ahead, labor-market developments are likely to remain a key driver of global financial markets, alongside geopolitical risks and remarks from Fed Governor Jefferson.

Indonesia's GDP growth for 4Q25 came in significantly higher than expected at 5.39% yoy (Cons: 5.10% yoy; Prev: 5.04% yoy). However, the stronger-than-anticipated economic performance did not translate into a meaningful positive reaction across domestic financial markets during yesterday's trading session. Equities came under pressure, with the JCI declining by -0.5%. This was notable given that stronger GDP growth is typically expected to be reflected in improved corporate earnings prospects for listed companies. At the same time, the fixed-income market also showed only a limited response. Despite the stronger growth outlook—which should, in principle, support fiscal conditions, the ICBI rose by only +0.01 points, while the ISIX edged up by just +0.03 points. According to IBPA data, SUN yields also moved slightly higher, with the 2Y SUN yield rising by +0.1 bps and the 10Y SUN yield increasing by +0.1 bps on the same day. Pressure was also evident in the currency market, as the rupiah weakened to IDR16,826 per USD (Prev: IDR16,775 per USD), based on the JISDOR reference rate. Looking ahead, the market is expected to face additional headwinds following Moody's decision to revise Indonesia's credit outlook to negative. In addition, developments from today's SRBI auction will also be closely monitored, as they may influence near-term market sentiment.

We anticipate a marginal increase in the 10Y SUN yield today (6 Feb '26), projecting it to range between 6.22% and 6.42%.
